PREPARATIONS FOR 1913 UNLIMITED

Does the Fiftieth Anniversary Mean Anything to You? Is it Merely the Reunion of the Surviving Veterans of a Great Civil War.

The anniversary in 1913 should be looked forward to as the beginning of a new epoch in the history of Gettysburg and the surrounding country. When the keeper of annal sounds the gong that will register the fiftieth year since the terrible carnage that took place in the peaceful Piedmont Valley, Gettysburg should be ready to respond with a new birth of life.

This story of a reunion seems to impress most people as following in the line of natural events. The state has appointed a committee to make arrangements and everything will move along smoothly and every person will be properly taken care of. A dream might reveal several thousand tents erected out on the battlefield with as many thousand old veterans lying in peaceful repose fanned by the balmy breeze of a warm summer evening. Reveille is sounded, and once more those same time worn veterans respond to roll call and receive their issue of rations for the day. Now this might make a pretty story and a very picturesque scene, but the Boys who return in 1913 will not be the same Boys who camped here in '63.

There is plenty of time to make preparations for the accommodation of the multitude that will be rolling into our town, from all points of the compass. It is not a question of accommodations only, that will be presented to the people, nor will it be a matter of submitting all questions to one committe in coarge, for their approval and prompt disposal. The many things of lesser importance are the very things that should concern each one as an individual and they are the very things that are always overlooked. It should be remembered that Gettysburg as a municipality is extending an invitation to the veterans and all their friends to be present at the fiftieth anniversary. They will be guests of the town. Now what have you done or what are you doing to receive them? Is the town ready to meet the President of the United States and all the other celebrities who are invited.

Not a week ago the court awarded damages to one of our citizens who, was injured by falling on an insecure crossing plate. Now don't jump on the Borough Council, look around your own home first. There are numerous places where injuries might be received and damages awarded at the expense of the property owners. The Borough is not alone, to blame for the miserable condition of some of our pavements. Right in the centre of town we have pavements that are certainly no credit to the property owners. Cellar doors and porches in many places extend half way across the walks. We have new orders and societies organized every few weeks to better certain conditions, but they all overlook the many existing conditions that are a detriment to our town.

There are few county seats in the State of Pennsylvania that have a population of less than 5000 inhabitants and a less number of county seats that do not have a single square foot of paved streets.

Some time ago an article appeared in these columns clipped from a paper published in a small town in Eastern Pennsylvania. It spoke unfavorably of this town as a place for holding conventions. Naturally the people were indignant and said they had not invited the delegates to meet in convention here.

Many improvements can be made and this line of work is up to the individual property owners in many instances. As to street conditions and crossings it is up to the Borough authorities.

FIRE ALARM RESPONDED TO

Firemen Attending Church Services Respond to Call. Overheated Stove Discovered before any Damage is Done.

On Sunday evening while many of the members of the Gettysburg fire department were attending services in the different churches, an alarm of fire interrupted the meetings Those who belong to the fire department hurriedly collected their belongings and started for the scene of action.

Fortunately some of the night workmen of the Western Maryland Railroad discovered the fire before it was under way. It happened in the house owned by Mrs Fuhrman and occupied by Charles Riggs, on Railroad street Some one had filled the stove with coal, turned on the draft and left the house. One of the railroad employes was passing and noticed a bright light through the window. On opening the door to see if the occupant was at home, the smoke rolled out in volumes. Securing a bucket he gave the roaring stove a thorough drenching and likewise the walls that were heated almost to the point of ignition.

The house is located on railroad street just below the warehouse of the Gettysburg Department Store, which was the scene of a most disastrous fire several years ago.

DR. GRANVILLE ENTERTAINED

At the new Hotel Washington on Friday evening in Chambersburg the Cumberland Valley Alumni Association held a banquet, which was in reality a boost for the alma mater of the gentlemen present and which was in every respect a most happy and pleasing function and feast The feature, of course, was the presence of President Granville, who was given warm greetings and made feel at home.

Prior to the banquet a public reception was given Dr. Granville. Many went to shake hands with him, meet him and give him welcome and as he said, "to encourage and strengthen him."

Judge Gilan paid a tribute to the people of the Cumberland Valley he knows who are products of Gettysburg College. He said he admires Gettysburg not only because of its college; but also of the great men the town has produced.

Garnet Gehr, Esq., spoke for the club. He said the members felt honored in having President Granville as their guest and suggested that the banquet be made an annual affair. He recounted some of his pleasant experiences at Gettysburg and was happy in his portrayal of reminiscenses.

HEAVY RAINFALL

Gettysburg and vicinity was treated to a mixture of weather Sunday, including snow, hail and finally rain. Early Sunday morning it looked as though the day would be of the ideal winter sort, but along toward noon there was a sudden change and it began to snow and sleet. All afternoon long the rain fell at intervals, but the weather man evidently saved his worst for evening, about the time people were leaving the churches. The streets were covered with water. It rained in torrents and many people were driven to shelter under awnings and in doorways. The prophet of weather conditions said it would be colder today and again he is right.

NEW BRAND OF APPLES

P. N. Rieker, proprietor of the Halana fruit farm, near Yorkana, displayed several specimens of apples at the Harrisburg exhibit which the judges could not name They were at first thought to be of the Wisconsin Spy variety, but while bearing a resemblance to this strain proved to be of a variety with which the judges were unfamiliar. The fruit was sent to the department of horticulture at Wshington, D. C., where a name will be given to the puzzling specimens.

GETTYSBURG 37 INDIANS 15

The Basket Ball Game between the Carlisle Indians and Gettysburg brings out Large Attendance. Visitors Played Hard Game.

On Saturday evening several hundred people crowded into the old gymnasium to witness the basket ball game between the Red Men and Gettysburg College. The game proved very interesting for those who saw it and it was quite noticeable that many who paid the admission fee saw only parts of the game and that at a great disadvantage The college is sorely in need of a new Gymn.

During the first ten minutes of play the teams seemed evenly matched, but Gettysburg took a sprint during the latter part of the first half and rolled up 21 points to 6, of their opponents.

In the second half both teams came back strong and for a time little scoring was done. The red men had changed their tactics and were playing on the defensive, breaking up the low passing which Gettysburg was using to great advantage. By close guarding the Indians allowed the local team only 16 points in the second half while they added 9 more to their own score, making the final score Gettysburg 37, Carlisle 15. The Indian line-up was worthy of note consisting of five of last season's backfield warriors of the gridiron, forwards, Wheelock, Wasueka, Taylor; centre, Wounded eye; guards, Dupuis, Powell. For Gettysburg forwards, Dayhoff, Baughman, Diehl; centre, Breitenreiter; guards, Rudisill, Brumbaugh, Myers.

WHEAT DAMAGED

Reports from local farmers place crops in a submerged state. The winter began with sufficient heavy snow to cover the wheat and keep it from freezing out, but for the past month the changeable weather and hard freezing has injured it severely. There has been plenty of rain which would indicate good growing weather and advance the wheat but with the hard freezing, when the ground is thoroughly saturated the roots are frozen and greatly damaged.

DOROTHY ARNOLD.

Daughter of New York Millionaire Mysteriously Missing.

NO TRACE OF MISS ARNOLD

George S. Griscom Knows Nothing of Heiress' Whereabouts.

New York, Jan. 31.—John W. Arnold, a brother of the girl who has been missing for forty-eight days, called on George S. Griscom, Jr., in Florence, Italy, on Jan. 18, and asked Mr. Griscom is he knew anything of Dorothy's whereabouts or her reason for leaving home.

Mr. Griscom is the middle-aged Pittsburger who is related to the Griscoms of this city and Philadelphia, and who, as has been told, was a frequent visitor at the Arnold home last summer.

He convinced young Arnold, so John S. Keith, the family lawyer said, that he was as much mystified as the girl's family and friends. He talked with so much frankness, Mr. Keith says, that the family could not retain any nation that he was acquainted with Miss Arnold's movements after he went to Europe on Nov. 3 last.

REFUSES TO TELL WHO SHOT HIM

Woman Hurries Away as Dentist is Wounded.

HEAD OF COMPANY MISSING

Man With Gaping Wound In Thigh Refuses to Tell Story—Shot After Quarrel.

New York, Jan. 30.—With a gaping bullet wound in his thigh, Dr. Frank J. Doland, a dentist, was found lying on a bed, fully dressed, in a small bedroom adjoining the offices of the New York Pain-Take Dental company, at Fifty-ninth street and Third avenue.

When pressed by the police to tell the story of the shooting he stoutly refused. Persons passing the offices at the time of the shooting informed the police that immediately after hearing the report of the pistol they saw a woman hurry out of the building and walk in the direction of Fifty-eighth street.

Later a pistol was found in the drawer of a dentist's operating stand in the adjoining room. Two of the cartridges had been exploded and the weapon bore evidence of recent use.

Dr. John H. Larsen, a dentist, told the police that he had been informed of the shooting by Miss Alma Beekman, who lives at the home of Dr. S. Worster, the president of the dental company. Dr. Larsen said Miss Beckman had called at his office and told him to hurry to the dental offices at Fifty-ninth street and Third avenue, as a man had been shot there.

Miss Beckman said she was in the offices with Dr. Worster when Dr. Doland called and asked for the loan of a dollar. When Dr. Worster refused to grant the request she said she took a dollar from her purse and handed it to Dr. Doland.

This incensed Dr. Worster, she said, and he demanded that Dr. Doland return the money. The dollar was returned to her, and when she left the room a few minutes later, she said, the two dentists were engaged in a heated discussion.

Miss Beckman walked through an operating room into a reception room. As she stepped into the hallway, she says, she heard a shot. As she entered, she says she saw Dr. Worster standing in the center of the room. Dr. Doland was rolling on the floor in agony. She bent over the injured man and asked him what had occurred. She says he refused to tell her and asked that she hurry out to summon a physician. She then ran to the office of Dr. Larsen.

The police were unable to find Dr. Worster after the shooting to obtain an explanation from him.

HER PUP BARRED

Mrs. Vanderbilt's Dog Turned Out of Atlantic City Hotel.

Atlantic City, Jan. 30.—Now that her her pet bull terrier and its attending maid have been accommodated at a boarding house near the beach front, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has changed her mind about leaving the resort.

She left the beach front hotel and was about to leave another when her dog was barred.

She made up her mind to stay when clerks assured her the standing rule against dogs was not abrogated even in the case of pets of the wealthy or persons in diplomatic circles, the Baroness Hengelmuller having left the resort last summer because she was not allowed to keep a spaniel at her hotel.

Stephen B. Elkins, Jr., son of the late United States senator from West Virginia, who spends much time with the Vanderbilt party on the boardwalk, also aided in convincing the young matron the anti-dog rule was inflexible, after he had made exhaustive inquiries.

GOING TO CANADA

London, Jan. 30.—The appointment of the Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George, as governor general of Canada, is officially announced.

The duchess will accompany the duke to Montreal. He will enter upon the office in September and will hold the appointment for two years, which may be subject to a further extension.

Each club will meet in its own city, but there will be only one program. At the plate of each guest will be a telephone receiver, enabling the Rochester guests to listen to the Buffalo speakers and singers and vice versa.

FLOCK TO BLIND GIRL'S TEST

Hundreds Interested In the Trance Case at McKeesport.

McKeesport, Pa., Jan. 30.—So great was the crowd wanting to see Margaret Shipley, the blind girl in a trance, that the West Penn Street Railway company was compelled to put on two extra cars to the suburban home, 117 Olympia street.

The cars were crowded, even to the roofs, while hundreds, unable to ride with safety and comfort, walked. About 100 persons remained about the house all night, watching shadows on the window shades.

The blind girl, who has promised the world that she will stand before them with her eyes (which have been blind from birth) fully restored, and all through her fasting and faith, came out of her trance partially toward morning, and for a few minutes exhorted in an unknown tongue. But one word was recognized by those who heard her. It was "Thibet."

On being questioned as to the significance of this word, Mrs. Charles F. Halderman, in whose house the girl is in a state of coma, said that Margaret before passing into her trance said she had been instructed that on receiving her sight she would go to Thibet as a missionary.

Before passing into the trance she advised Mrs. Halderman that she wanted twelve persons, whom she named, to be present when she regained her sight.

SNEEZING POWDER SUBDUES HORSE

Vicious Animal Badly Injures Man in Stall.

Fort Plain, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Barney Kent, a local horseman, is in a dangerous condition as the result of a battle with a vicious stallion.

Mr. Kent is much bruised and battered from being dashed to a cement floor and trampled upon, and his left hand was frightfully mutilated by the animal's teeth. Only by resorting to a novel method was the man's life saved.

He was alone in the box stall with the enraged stallion, and nobody dared to go to his rescue, although the tumult attracted many awed spectators. Directly across the street Gifford Wood has a novelty store, and he was selling a customer powder such as mischievous boys are fond of circulating in public places to cause general sneezing and coughing to all who inhale it.

With others Wood rushed to the scene of the man-stallion battle, and when he realized the helpless and dangerous predicament of Kent, Wood, having brought with him in his haste a quantity of the sneezing powder, quickly scattered it in the stall. The stallion inhaled liberally through his widely distended nostrils and was attacked by a fit of tremendous sneezing that occupied all of his attention and enabled onlookers to drag Kent from his perilous position.

Wood is now a hero, and his friends will make an application for a Carnegie medal.

DROPS DEAD AT BANQUET

Wealthy Business Man Stricken With Paralysis.

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 30.—"Gentlemen, we may never meet in this way again," remarked Samuel N. Greene, a wealthy business man of Florida, Orange county, in an after-dinner speech at a banquet in this city.

An instant later he fell back into his chair unconscious. He had been stricken with paralysis. He was attending the annual banquet of the Orange County Wagonmakers, and as he is seventy years old he felt that it was not likely that he would ever attend another banquet.

Boy Bandits Doomed.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 30. — Charles Melodorowski and Algot Johnson, the boy bandits, were sentenced to life imprisonment and thirty years' imprisonment, respectively, for the killing of Policeman Harry Chessmore, on Jan. 6. The boys had held up the night clerk and porter of a hotel and bound them to posts, then rifled the cash register, and later, in an attempt to escape, shot and killed the officer.

Gunboat Wheeling Safe In Port.

Washington, Jan. 30.—After the entire country had been stirred for over three days by a baseless rumor that the American gunboat Wheeling had been blown up at sea, the little vessel, with its 160 men, dropped anchor in the harbor at Guantanamo, her officers and crew totally ignorant of the anxiety which her voyage from New York to Cuban waters had caused.

Blast Furnaces Busy.

Reading, Pa., Jan. 30.—Most of the blast furnaces in this section are in operation. In the Schuylkill valley there are six furnaces going, with a daily output of 1760 gross tons, and in the Lebanon valley five stacks are running and produce 820 tons daily. The outlook is much better than it has been for some time.

DOUBLE POISONING MYSTERY SOLVED

Deadly Gas Filled Room Where Lovers Sat.

ANIMALS ARE EASILY SLAIN

Apparent Effects of Cyanide of Potassium Explained to Satisfaction of Authorities.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 30. — The mystery of the Elosser-Twigg double poisoning has been solved.

The deep mystery of the tragedy wherein two young people, Miss M. Grace Elosser and Charles E. Twigg, to whom she was to have been married the following day, met sudden and mysterious death in the parlor of the Elosser home in Cumberland on the afternoon of Dec. 31, is a mystery no longer.

Miss Elosser and Twigg were the victims of an accident. They lost their lives because of the improper combustion of gas from a natural gas stove in the parlor, which caused carbon monoxide gas to generate, a gas so deadly that one-half of 1 per cent is estimated to be fatal in a closed room.

Dr. J. H. Littlefield and Dr. A. H. Hawkins discovered the presence of the gas in the parlor of the Elosser residence, made experiments with it, and backed up their knowledge of its deadly action by twice subjecting cats to its fumes, both times with fatal results.

Several days ago Dr. Littlefield was informed of the presence of a natural gas stove in the parlor, and he at once thought of the action of carbon monoxide gas. He communicated his find to Dr. Hawkins, and an examination of the stove made by them not only showed improper combusion, but the further fact that the mica was broken at the top of the door and that jets of gas fumes would shoot through the holes in it.

Cat Quickly Killed.

Experiments were made and it was determined to try another on a cat, a hearty, robust feline that Dr. Littlefield had procured. The cat was placed in a box with slats over it to prevent the animal getting out. This box was placed on the settee in the Elosser parlor where Twigg's body was found. The room, even to the placing of chairs, stands and other furniture was left identically the same as on the day that the two young persons perished.

The doors and windows were closed as on that day, and the little gas stove was lighted and turned up as high. As Miss Elosser and Twigg were in the room one and a half hours, the cat was left there the same time, when it was found curled up as though asleep, but dead, having died without a struggle.

The autopsy on the cat showed the organs red and inflamed and the blood a bright red, the same poison traces found in the bodies of Miss Elosser and Twigg and mistaken for traces of cyanide of potassium.

Puzzles Satisfactorily Explained.

State's Attorney Robb and City Health Officer Harrington were notified and, after a long consultation, the gas was tried again on another cat and a rabbit, with the same results as to the cat and with a drowsiness for the rabbit.

Another rabbit was killed with potassium cyanide, and its blood was found blue and clogged, entirely different from that shown by the autopsy on the remains of Miss Elosser and Twigg. The fact that a cyanide reaction was obtained from the contents of the stomaches of Miss Elosser and Twigg is explained by the fact that the contents of a normal stomach will give such a reaction if the stomach contain saliva, due to the presence of a small amount of cyanide.

"We worked on theories, murder, double suicide and murder and suicide," said State's Attorney Robb. "We are now investigating a fourth theory. We have reached no conclusion. I know two cats used in the experiment are dead. I cannot say how Charles E. Twigg and Grace Elosser met their deaths."

The doctors who conducted the autopsy on the bodies of Miss Elosser and Twigg discredit the death-by-asphyxiation theory. They say they found evidence of poisoning by cyanide of potassium.

Suicide Spared Household Pets.

New York, Jan. 30.—Mrs. Christena Weller, a widow, seventy-five years old, of Williamsburg, killed herself by gas. In order not to sacrifice the lives of a pet canary bird, a dog and a cat, she first carried the three to a room in the upper part of the dwelling and shut the door.

King Alfonso, Queen Victoria and Their Two Sons.

DENIES ROYAL SCANDAL

Spanish Minister Declares King and Queen Victoria Are Happy.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The attention of the Spanish legation was called to publications that domestic infelicity had caused an estrangement between King Alfonso and Queen Victoria.

Minister Rieno made emphatic denial of the story. The minister's denial, he declares, is based on his personal knowledge, as well as upon that acquired in his official capacity. He asserts unhesitatingly that the royal pair enjoy the happiest relations.

The rumors of a projected separation were set afloat maliciously by anti-dynastic influences, he said.

PORTUGAL TO PAY PENSION TO MANUEL

Deposed Ruler to Receive $3300 a Month.

Lisbon, Jan. 30.—The Diario de Noticeas announces that the Portuguese government has decided to pay $3300 as a monthly pension to the deposed King Manuel. A check for the months of October, November and December already has been sent to him.

Manuel II., the exiled king of Portugal, is now living with the Queen Mother Amelie, at Wood Norton, in Eversham, England, where he was obliged to acccept the hospitality of the Duke or Orleans. He reached there last October from Gibraltar, where he sought British protection after being driven out of Portugal.

Since his arrival in England there have been many reports of the poverty stricken condition of the former sovereign, whose debts in Uortugal alone are estimated at more than $300,000. The importunities of creditors have been strong, and it aws understood at one time that the new government of Portugal had determined to liquidate those of the obligations legally incurred.

Concerning the property in Portugal owned personally by Manuel and others of the royal family, a decree issued a few months ago promised that a settlement would be made as soon as possible and that the legal rights of the exiles of the royal family would be respected.

BABY KILLS PRIZE ROOSTERS

Invades Coop and Is Badly Hurt In Battle With Fowls.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Jan. 30. — Policeman Edward Hainley brought home triumphantly a coop of nine Wyandotte roosters, prize winners at the Blair county poultry show.

Mr. Hainley's four-year-old baby boy invaded the coop. A battle between the baby and fowls resulted. At its close Master Hainley was badly pecked, scratched and torn, but victorious withal over all the blue-blooded Wyandottes, whose necks he had wrung.

Many Middies Face Dismissal.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30. — On account of difficulty with the examinations in mechanics, forty-one members of the second class of midshipmen have been reported as unsatisfactory and may be asekd to resign. However, it is probable that there will be a re-examination or another marking on a more liberal scale.

Gov. Harmon's Water Supply Cut Off.

Columbus, O., Jan. 30. — Governor Judson Harmon is out of water at his home. An inspector went there and turned off the water. The department notified Harmon several weeks ago that he must pay $5 for his meter. No notice was taken by him. Other warnings followed without effect, so the department ordered the water shut off.

OLIVER AGAINST RECIPROCITY

Senator Bitterly Assails Pact With Canada.

SEVERE BLOW TO FARMERS

Says Manufacturing and Industrial Classes Will Benefit at the Expense of the Farmers.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 30. — Senator George T. Oliver, who was re-elected to his seat by the Pennsylvania legislature last week, created a sensation at the Americus club's McKinley day banquet by bitterly assailing the Taft-Canadian reciprocity campaign.

He said in part: "There is no doubt that the effect of this arrangement with Canada will be to stimulate trade between us and our northern neighbor, but in considering this we must not lose sight of the fact that the Canadian products mostly affected are the fruits of the soil, while the benefit to be derived by our people will largely accrue to the industrial or manufacturing class. As a result of this, therefore, our manufacturers, merchants and industrial laborers will profit at the expense of the farmers.

"The farming interest has always been one of the great bulwarks of the Republican party, and while I naturally hesitate about antagonizing any important measures favored by the administration of President Taft, will have to experience a change of heart before I vote to deprive one class of our industries of that protection to which they are justly entitled, under all theories and practices of the Republican party, for the benefit of others.

"I am aware this reciprocity agreement professes to follow the theories of President McKinley as outlined in his Buffalo speech, the last he ever delivered. But in that speech he distinctly said that by such treaties we should take from our customers only such of their products as we can use without hdarm to our industries and labor."

SETTLERS IN MEXICO STARVE

Fear of Brigands Cuts Off Supplies of American Emigrants.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 30.—While fierce fighting continues in Mexico between the government troops and the rebel forces, American settlers are almost starving for the lack of food and are in terror of their lives.

Because of the fear of robbery by Mexican bandits, freighters have ceased to take in supplies.

Customs Collector Sharpe here has been authorized to secure six more deputies to help enforce the neutrality laws and to prevent smuggling in of arms.

Fighting has occurred in the vicinity of Galeana, Chihuahua, south of El Paso, near the Mormon colonies.

Reports place the list of dead and wounded at various figures, but it appears, from the most conservative estimates, that there are between forty and fifty federals dead.

Mormons bring the report to Casas Grande that many of the wounded federal soldiers are lying on the battlefield unattended, some of them having been left for two days.

GOOD QUALITIES OF RED POLLED CATTLE

As early as the year 1778 in the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, England, there were whole dairies of Red Polled cattle. The breed was then universally polled—that is, without horns—and at about that time a number of men farming in those counties whose farms were near together co-operated to improve their Red Polls by careful selection, writes P. G. Henderson in the Breeder's Gazette.

The year 1846 may be taken as the date from which the Norfolk and Suffolk Red Polls merged into each other, and it was at this time that the East Norfolk Agricultural association established classes for Norfolk Polled cattle.

The first importation of these red and hornless milk and meat producers was made to the United States in 1873, consisting of one bull and three cows. The date of their introduction into the United States in any considerable numbers, however, can be placed at about twenty-five years ago. At that time these docile hornless and uniformly red cattle were making their first appearance before the American public.

The introduction into the field of animal husbandry in America of a breed of cattle purporting to be profitable milk producers and also good on the block was naturally resented by the advocates of special purpose cattle of both beef and milk type. Evidently, then, if the Red Polls have won their way to any marked degree of public favor they must have done it in the face of the most severe criticism. While the breeders of strictly beef or dairy cattle freely concede a place for the other, they do not concede a middle ground and have persistently combated the reality of the bovine animal whose qualities were a combination of the two.

Red Polled cattle, as their name indicates, are red in color and hornless. They originated in England and are considered good beef makers and milk producers. This breed is noted for hardiness of constitution, enabling them to thrive on scanty pasture and withstand the severe winters and cold springs of the eastern counties of England.

In spite of this antagonistic force Red Polls have rapidly spread through the United States. They are now favorites upon hundreds of farms in nearly every state in the Union. This would have been impossible had they not possessed in an eminent degree the qualities of a farmer's cow—a cow that can make good herself in the dairy and her progeny in the feed lot. The field open for such a cow is practically unlimited in the great corn producing states, where feed is so abundant and comparatively cheap. The cow that can yield a profit from butter fat sold to the creamery and whose calf, if hand fed and later gently raised with the skill now so easily acquired, will sell to the feeder also at a profit is the farmer's cow.

Corn as a Horse Feed.

The corn kernel for horses is very well worth while under certain circumstances. This is ordinarily fed in the form of cracked corn. For animals at hard work a considerable share of the grain ration may be thus made up. Corn is but ill adapted to livery or trotting horses, for its fattening qualities are such as to inhibit their active exercises. For slow, heavy work, however, if not fed in immoderate quantities, it is well worth while, particularly in winter.—Professor J. L. Hills, Vermont Experiment Station.

Laugh a Little Bit.

Here's a motto just your fit—
Laugh a little bit.
When you think you're trouble hit
Laugh a little bit.
Look misfortune in the face,
Brave the beldam's rude grimace,
Ten to one 'twill yield its place
If you have the wit and grit
Just to laugh a little bit.

Cherish this as sacred writ—
Laugh a little bit.
Keep it with you, sample it—
Laugh a little bit.
Little ills will soon betide you,
Fortune may not sit beside you,
Men may mock and fame deride you,
But you'll mind them not a whit
If you laugh a little bit.

—Edmund Vance Cooke.

An Obedient Czar.

There is a very pompous foreign nobleman, a baron, who is residing temporarily in Washington. The baron, who, if report speaks true, is somewhat henpecked, invited some men a night or two ago to play cards in his house. The meeting was a convivial one, and all went "merry as a marriage bell." It grew late, and fears were expressed by the party that they were trespassing upon the kindness of the mistress of the house, who, by the way, was not present.

AND ALL ROSE.

"Not at all gentlemen; not at all. Play as long as you please. I am czar here," said the master of the mansion.

"Yes, gentlemen, play as long as you please," said a silvery voice, and all rose immediately as the baroness stood before them, "but as it is after 1 o'clock the czar is going to bed." He went.

One Advantage of a Red Head

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I was born with a head of fiery red hair. As a kid I remember people looking at it as they would at a burning barn, making all kinds of allusions to my hair and countless jokes, many of them very poor and in bad taste and all obnoxious to me.

When I grew old enough to have a sweetheart I was obliged to go without one, all on account of the growth on my head. I kept it cut very short, but without effect. Just as soon as I came in contact with man, woman or child I saw at once that my hair was against me. One thing I would not do—I refused all barbers who suggested my permitting them to dye it. On entering their shops I would say, "Hair cut; no dye." Whenever, after this notice, a barber offered to give my hair a different color I glared at him and told him that if he repeated the offer he must fight. I thrashed so many people for reference to my blemish that I became an expert boxer.

Hoping that the people of the west were more considerate than those of the east, I went to Denver. The first salute I received there was: "Hello, carrot top! Y' goin' to set the timber on the mountings afire?" I had got tired of thrashing people and turned away without a word. I sought employment in a large manufacturing concern. On entering the office my eyes lighted on a gentleman sitting at a desk who had red hair, for all the world as red as mine. He looked up, and in an instant his gaze was fixed on my top.

He arose from his chair and, advancing to the office rail, grasped my hand in a viselike grip.

"My dear sir," he said warmly and with a respectful mien I had never before been favored with, "what can I do for you?"

"I'm seeking employment."

"You shall have it right here. What can you do?"

"Nothing. I must learn. But I'm willing to work without pay till I do."

"You'll not work without pay here. Judging from your appearance, you are well bred and educated. A man of your condition can't get on with less than a hundred dollars a month. I'll give you that and put you in our best department. Mr. Stamper!" he called.

An employee advanced, and I noticed he, too, had a red head. He was instructed to put me to work and on the payroll at the same time. As I passed through the works I noticed every man had a red head, but none so red as mine and the manager's. Ours was the same hue exactly.

"You'll be shoved up ahead of us all," said the man who had taken me in charge.

"Why so?" I asked.

"You're the only man here who has as red hair as the president."

The words proved true. I was jumped from one grade to another so fast that I barely had time to learn the duties in each. And every time I jumped my salary jumped too.

This was not all. Mr. Flynn, the president and principal owner, asked me one day to come to his house to dinner. I went, of course, and was introduced to his family. Every one of his children had red hair of various shades. His oldest daughter, Emily, had veritable Titian locks. For the first time in my life I felt easy in social company. For the first time not a person about me looked at my head, much less referred to it. Miss Emily Flynn was very gracious to me and was the first young woman who had ever thus treated me so. I was happy as a clam at high tide. After dinner she led me into a separate parlor, and I spent the hours there chatting with her. They were thus far the happiest hours of my life. I left her with a wildly beating heart.

To make a long story short, Miss Flynn encouraged me and I encouraged Miss Flynn. One day she told me I might go to her father and ask for her. I did so and was accepted for a son-in-law with great gusto. "Go back to Em," he said, "and tell her you have my hearty consent, and remain to dinner."

I spent the afternoon with Emily and dined with the family. After dinner Mr. Flynn said to me:

"You have shown wonderful restraint in not asking why I have welcomed you into my business and into my family. The time has come for me to enlighten you.

"Years ago I came to this country from Ireland without a cent and worked at any job I could get in a great city. One day I was arrested accused of stealing from a Jew. He had told the police that a red headed Irishman had robbed him. I was stood in line with several other men, and this Jew picked me out as the man who had robbed him. I was tried, and the evidence was strong against me. I was about to be convicted when a red headed man strolled in among the spectators. My attorney, following a suggestion given by the man's red hair, called for him and placed him beside me. Then he sent for the Jew and when he came into court asked him which of the two had robbed him. The Jew couldn't tell. He had simply identified me because the man who had robbed him had a red head. The jury acquitted me at once.

"'God bless red headed men!' I exclaimed. 'From this day they are all my bosom friends.'

"And it has always been my wish to have a red headed son-in-law and be the progenitor of generations of red headed descendants."

That a good deal of York state land comes a long way from being petered out and useless is plainly shown in a little item which we saw in the Danville (N. Y.) Breeze not long since. It told of a farmer near that place who the past season raised forty acres of red kidney beans, which grossed him a trifle more than $100 per acre. Being a leguminous crop, these beans did not rob the soil, as would have been the case with grain, potatoes, cabbage or onions.

Will Rugby Style Oust Yankee Football Game?

FOOTBALL may become an international sport after all—that is, if the efforts of Alexander Knox, chairman of the New South Wales Rugby Football league, materialize. Contrary to the majority of Englishmen who want international football and merely ask the abandonment of all prevailing and national styles for the Rugby game, Mr. Knox proposes an international congress which shall form a new code, embracing the best features of the different followings.

Ever should Mr. Knox succeed in forming such a congress, with plenary powers, it would be a matter of months if not years before the different codes could be melded into anything resembling an easily comprehended yet skillful game. The original English Rugby has changed but little since its codified formation some sixty years ago. On the other hand, one of its children, the American game, has been so pruned, elongated, stretched and compressed that few followers of the parent can see a resemblance in the offspring.

Then there is another wayward child in the form of Canadian Rugby, which embraced features of the American game together with the parent stem and produced a sport which differs from all others. Still again, the Australians have a football sport that can briefly be described as a hodgepodge of Rugby and the association or soccer games.

There is little question that the American rulers of football are in a more receptive mood for overtures at this time than any other. The English Rugby game, while not threatening the reign of American football, is nevertheless making steady inroads in the United States and at a time when the American rules committee is wrangling over the improvement of the game. The Leland Stanford, Jr., and California universities have played the Rugby game for half a dozen years, first, because they were permitted to play no other, and now because they prefer it. There is talk of the University of Wisconsin making the Rugby game obligatory in 1912, and others are expected to follow suit.

Briefly, the differences between the American and English games lies in the legalized illegalities which have made the Yankee sport what it is. The basic change was the scrimmage, which, when Harvard adopted the game in 1876, was a sort of cumbersome shoving match until the ball escaped. The Americans reduced it to a businesslike snapping back of the ball, which saved time, but destroyed for all time the old significance of the forwards.

Then came the interference, which legalized a violation of the historic British offside rule and which drove the wedge of difference between the two games into an unbridgeable gap. Then when the game became so compact that injuries multiplied and public interest waned the forward pass, another legalized offside illegality, appeared.

The writer has been having a grippy cold of late, which leads him to express the hope that dumb animals are not afflicted in the same way. We are mighty sorry for them if they are.

It is the experience of a good many that colds are more often contracted through the wearing of too thick underclothing and cooling suddenly while in a perspiration than from wearing undergarments that are too thin.

FATTENING STEER CALVES IN WINTER.

The problem of feeding cattle promises this winter to be interesting.

An abundance of corn, however, somewhat lower in price than for the past few years, with cheaper oats and a pretty fair hay crop point to profit in feeding cattle during the season of 1910-11, says the American Agriculturist. Consequently those who have young beef steers on hand or can get them at a reasonable price can do no better than give this matter of cattle feeding during the winter very full and complete consideration.

The Indiana experiment station during the season of 1907-9 conducted a series of experiments bearing directly upon this question. It was found that steer calves given a full feed of grain from November to May made more rapid and cheaper gains, attained a higher finish, sold at a higher price and returned a greater profit when confined in dry lots in the spring than if turned on pasture for finishing. It was found that full fed calves, when turned to grass shrunk in weight during the first ten days and required from two to three weeks to regain their original weight. Furthermore, it was found that steers in a dry lot consumed a greater amount of concentrates than similar cattle on pasture.

Shamrock II., grand championship steer of the International Live Stock exposition, was born Jan. 8, 1910, and weighed at time of his entry in the show 1,100 pounds. He was bred by J. P. Shamrock II. was sold for slaughter at 60 cents a pound live weight.

It is not always the best plan to dispose of beef cattle as yearlings, but in many instances in the corn belt area it has come to be a common practice and is followed by a considerable number of cattle raisers. Consequently this work of the Indiana experiment station will prove of great value to those following the plan of selling early.

Shamrock II., the grand champion, was fed on a ration of four parts corn, three parts oats, one part oilmeal, with pasture and milk part of the time from one nurse cow and later from two.

Some one has hit upon the simple plan of tacking pieces of an old rubber boot to the bottoms of the stepladder legs to keep from sliding in slippery places.

DOG SAVES CHILDREN

Pulls Boy and Girl Ashore When They Break Through Ice.

New York, Jan. 30.—Rex, an overgrown St. Bernard puppy owned by David Wilson, a farmer of Bogota, N. J., saved the lives of Wilson's two children.

Harry Wilson, twelve years old, and Grace, nine years old, fell through the ice on a small pond back of the Wilson barn. Rex jumped in and pulled first the boy and then the girl ashore.

Both children had swallowed a quantity of water and were helpless for a time. As soon as he had them ashore the dog ran to the farmhouse and fetched the father.
